TEAMSTERS RESTRAINED

Sweeping Order Issued by a Federal Judge.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE

Complainants Recite Terms of Contrac Team Drivers' Union Asked Them to Sign-Threatened to Kill. Defendants Cited to Court.

(By Associated Prees.)

OMAHA, NEB., May 6.—On petition of a number of complainants, including the principal transfer and delivery companies involved in the teamsters' strike, judge Munger, of the Federal Court, topight granted temporary restraining order enjoining the officers of the Team Drivers' International Union, Local 71, with all members of the union, from doing certain acts calculated to interfere with interstate commerce, and commanding them to appear in court May 20 to show cause why a temporary injunction should not be granted.

The petition was filed by attorneys representing seven delivery companies, five coal-dealers, one lumber company, one lobber and a departmnt store.

Eve coal-dealers, one lumber company, one tobber aint a departmint store.

In the petition the complainants recite the terms of the contract the team drivers' union asked them to sign, which provided that 'no teamster shall be discharged, laid off or docked in his time, or pay for refusing to haul goods to or from any house for a firm, corporation or contractor declared to be 'unfair' by the labor unions," and then goes on to relate particular instances in which by threats, intimidation and violence the strikers have interfered with their lawful business.

It is alleged that a threat was made by ness.

It is alleged that a threat was made by one of the strikers that if Walter Jardine undertook to do business with non-union drivers he would be assaulted and killed. It is further also of that interstate commerce was interacred with when the strikers stopped goods in transit from Omaha to Council Bluffs, and from one freight depot to another in Omaha.

SWEEPING NATURE.

The order issued by Judge Munger is of the most sweeping nature. More than 800 of the teamsters union are named in the order, which restrains the men from posting pickets instructed or directed to challenge or stop, threaten or intimidate any employes of the petitioners, or from any manner interfering with any of the employes, by violence, threats of perfencial injury, calling of vite names or offensive epithets, or any other conduct colculation. employes, by violence, threats of personal injury, calling of vile names or offensive epithets, or any other conduct calculated or intended by intimidation or humilitation to prevent any of the employes from continuing in said employment or performing the services for which they are employed; from congregating about the teams, wagons or employes and demanding and commanding that the employes shall deskt from their employment; from following the employes to their homes or other places for the purpose of intimidating and from attacking, assaulting or injuring any of them and from publishing any orders, stafements, rules, or directions by the officers of the said Team Drivers' International Union, or any other similar organization; commanding or enjoining under the pain of personal violence or other persecution, any of the employes from continuing in the service of their employer, from further restraining and enjoining the Team Drivers' Union, its officers and members, from continuing in combination or agreement to restrain commerce between the States by any agreement or concert of action to prevent the moving of freight and merchandise while in transit as an article of interstate commerce."

The action of the Federal Court practically takes the strike out of the hands of the local and State authorities.

Large crowds of strikers have gathered in different parts of the city during the day jeering the owners of wagons who themselves were driving teams. The entire police force is doing double dury, but no violence has been reported during the day and no arrests have been made.

MILLIONS FOR ROADS

New York to Spend Big Sum in Improvement.

ADVANTAGE OF STATE AID

Objection That It Encourages Neglect in Local Communities Has Proven

Wholly Imaginary-Has Direct Opposite Effect.

When Colonel Brownlow, of Tennessee, Introduced a bill in Congress appropriating twenty million dollars as a fund for National and to road improvement in the United States, a good many people were startled at the size of the figures. The amount, however, seems very small compared with the sum that a single State now proposes to raise and spend. The New York Legislature has adopted a constitutional amendment proposing to raise and spend five million dollars annually for ten years, or fifty millions in all. This amendment must pass the Legislature again in 1965, and then it will go before the people for ratification or rejection. It can reasonably be expected that the measure will meet with popular favor. The people of New York have given the principles of State aid a thorough trial and the results have been highly satisfactory.

PURELY IMAGINARY.

One of the objections most loudy urged against both State and National aid is that it will encourage local communities to neglect the improvement of their roads and depend on the State and the Federal Government to de the work for them. But this objection has proven to be purely imaginary. In no place where State aid has been tried has any such result appeared. On the contrary, aid from the State treasury only stimulates local self-help. It arouses warm competition among the counties and townships to secure a share of the State aid funds. Instead of sitting down and folding their hands as predicted, the local communities are rais-When Colonel Brownlow, of Tennessee

Ing a great deal more money under the stimulus of State aid than they did before.

A very important advantage that comes from State aid is intelligent supervision in laying out roads, selecting materials, and in methods of construction. This may mean all the difference between success and failure. Every year millions of the peoples' tiard-curied dollars are wasted, virtually thrown away, in fruitless attempts to patch up bad roads, to fill mud holes, and to improve roads with unnecessary steep grades, all because there is no one in charge with the knowledge, judgment and authority to do the work as it ought to be done.

BEST INSTEAD OF WORST.

What is said of the advantages of State aid applies all the more forcibly to National aid. Its effect will be far-reaching. It will quicken the pulse of the whole nation. It will arouse universal activity. "Good Roads" will become the peoples' watchword throughout the length and breadth of the land. A quarter of a century of work under National and State and should give the United States the best system of roads in the world instead of almost the worst as at present. It looks now as if National aid is bound to come in the near future. Already the State Legislatures of Alabama, Tennessee, Wisconsin, New Mexico, Missouri and Mannesota have put themselves on record in its favor. ecord in its favor.

Cleveland and Victory.

Cleveland and Victory.

Editor of The Times-Dispatch:

Sir,—The return of sentiment in favor of Grover Cleveland we can but regard as a good omen; a harbinger of success; a forerunner of victory. If the Democratic party cannot revive under the magic of his name, then its cause is utterly lost and hopeless in the next presidential campaign. He is the strongest man in America to-day who claims featity to the imperishable principles of true Dimercacy. He is the only man in the past forty years who has led the party to victory, aye, a double victory.

He has some enemies in his party, ft is true, but those who admire him love him, love him all the more for the enemies he has made, because he made them by strict adherence to his strong conceptions of right, but he would, owing to his personality, draw more largely than any other man in America from our friends, the enemy, and what loss the party might sustain from the disgruntled Democrats would be more than made up from the Republican party, many thousands of whom would vote for him on personal grounds, as they did an previous occasions.

With old Grover to the front in the occasions.

With old Grover to the front in the next campaign, with "tarjer for revenue only" on the banner, the party can win. With any other leader, in my fudgment, defeat is certain. What the party wants is a man of strong and decided convictions; one who has always and under all electrostications of the convictions of the convictin circumstances stood by its principles and fought under its banner. Cleveland, in my judgment, is the grandest character, the judgment, is the grandest character, the greatest statesman in America to-day What Gladstone was to England, wha Bismark was to Germany, he is to the people of this country! The Religious Situation.

The Religious Situation.

Editor of The Times-Dispatch;
Sir,—Apropos of an article in your columns a week or two ago, headed the religious situation, by Thomas B. Gregory, I take the occasion to say that there is more consideration given to those questions than is generally supposed, and whilst the old theology may be "as dead as a nail in a door," yet it is not required of us to accept any certain wiews on theology; whether they be ancient or modern.

We often have to ask where is "the doctrines once delivered to the saints". By gradual gradations even truth may be pervented, and its opposite made to take its place, especially when there are but so few, whose belief is so well established as to allow them to tell what they really believe. The theolouge finds it as hard to form a basis for his belief as does the layman, and perhaps harder, especially if he has devoted much time to the anmadversions of many theoriogical writers. He must, he thinks, read the scriptures in the light of modern science, and when he thinks he has found a non-conformity, he takes it upon himself to furnish the missing link. He learns from noted writers that the Biblical account of the journey of israel from Egypt to the Holy Land, is not to be taken in a literal sense, but is to be considered as a type of the Christians temporal experience. He learns that a belief in such things as the translation of the old prophet to Heaven, and many other such miracles, has become obsolete. He filinds the word heli, applied to the graye or the walley of Guhinnon or Tophet.

The human mind is composed of a very frail fabric, however strong it may seem in some; how very susceptible it is to changes. Its frailty is never more thoroughly shown than when it attempts a diagnosis of questions belonging only to divinity. Too much theology is apt to lead us into labrynth, from the mares of which we will find it hard to extricate ourselves. We are told in holy writ that "not many great; not many wise are chosen," but to the contrary, the fool need not err in understanding the plan of sal-watton.

The religion of Jesus Christ consists in The religion of Jesus Christ consists in meckness, humility and love, and any professions which do not embody these constituents can be nothing more than sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal.

"All these things have I done from my youth up," said the young man—who must have been a very good man—"sell what thou hast and follow me!" he could not do it. Suppose we apply the same test in the twentieth century.

In consideration of the fact that we all know that we will soon be called upon "To lie in cold obstruction, and to rot;

"To lie in cold obstruction, and to rot; This sensible warm motion to become; A kneaded clod,"

A kneaded clod."

Is it not strange that we do not give more thought to the subject than we do?

We are taught that unless we ignore our boasted wisdom and bring our faith to the plain teaching of Scripture, and become as a little child, we can never hope to see salvation. Our greatest wisdom is nothing but what we have received from others. Pope tells us that skepticism is as much the result of knowledge as knowledge is of skepticism. The blind bard of England tells us

"To know that, which Before us lies, in daily life, Is the prime wisdom, what is More is fume and emptiness."

More is rume and empericas.

There can be no doubt as to the minds of many good men being affected by the hypothetical reasoning of the present age, and the old-time faith is made to stagger. Let us cling to our faith in the God of our fathers, and when we encounter teachings contrary to our simple belief, we should remember that they are the views of fallible man, and sometimes it may be that it is set forth by the "unsubstantial colonge of the brain" of those who would teach holy writ, and "ret not Dame Birtha and Bir Martin "Let not Dame Birtha and Sir Martin Thence, into Heaven's counsels deem That they can pry; for one of these may

And turned darkest night to endless

True, womanly ears were the first to hear The grand message of a risen Lord; And womanly love shall still onward bear The wonder of his precious Word!

A score of centuries now have flown Since that first fair Easter day, And millions of helrs of Heaven born Felt the power that rolled the stone

Then sing it o'er and o'er again; The Lord's Omnipotent power to save! Immortal youth, soul-saving power proransomed Life and Deathless grave!
